EXPLANATION
A "carryback" contribution is a regular IRA contribution made in one year but credited for tax purposes to the prior year. You may make IRA carryback contributions any time before the deadline for filing your income tax return, not including extensions. You should keep this form with your tax records for the designated year of contribution. SEP IRA and SIMPLE IRA carryback contributions may be made by the employer any time before the tax filing deadline for the business, including extensions.
